

Coaching Programmes for Senior Executives

Coaching for Improved Presentation Skills

Presentation skills are something that everyone in business possess, however we are rarely born with the skills to present to large groups, or in tense situations, it is something we learn over time. For many leaders even at the highest level there is an uncertainty and concern about how to deliver presentations at any level.

By providing targeted high quality one to one presentation skills to you executives you are setting them up for delivering higher level, more strategic presentations for now and the future. At senior level communication becomes the most important skills for clarifying the message and getting it across appropriately.

This programme is not designed for large presentations it also operates for those executives who are looking to improve their presentation impact in a one-to-one conversation in the office or with a client.

For senior executives this coaching programme also works well when specific presentations, interviews or events, are coming up. The coach will work with the executive before, up to and during the presentation to ensure maximum results. Additionally, the programme may also help the leader with their presentation design and build where required, offering the full package for great impactful presentations.

Based on our premise that every conversation is a presentation, this coaching programme an improve conversations at all levels within the organisation.

The ultimate in-depth one to one coaching programme designed to radically improve presentation skills, leaving a lifetime of more impactful conversations in your senior management population.

Sessions will be different lengths depending on requirement. Sessions must be face-to-face.

Who's it for?

This programme is designed for any senior leader

- Who has a significant sales meetings or pitch coming up
- Looking to understand new ways to handle political dynamics.
- Leaders with importance presentations coming up
- Leaders looking to improve their impact whilst leading teams
- Executives who suffers from anxiety at the thought of making a presentation.

How does it work?

