

Coaching Programmes for Middle Managers

Coaching for Improved Presentation Skills

Presentation skills are something that everyone in business possesses. We are rarely born with the skills to present to large groups, or in tense situations, it is something we learn over time.

By providing targeted high quality one to one presentation skills to your middle managers you are setting them up for delivering higher level, more strategic presentations for the future. At middle manager level communication becomes really important in terms of clarifying the message and getting it across appropriately.

This programme should not be considered just for potential leaders who are doing large presentations it also operates for individuals who are looking to improve their impact in a one to one conversation in the office or with a client.

The programme may also be tailored around specific presentations, interviews or events, where required. With the coach actually attending the presentation to support to the very end. Additionally, the programme may also help the manager with their presentation design and build where required.

Based on our premise that every conversation is a presentation, this coaching programme creates improved conversations at all levels within the organisation.

The ultimate in-depth one to one coaching programme is designed to radically improve presentation skills, leaving a lifetime of more impactful conversations in your junior management population.

Who's it for?

This programme is designed for any middle manager who is looking to have more impactful effective conversations leading to more effective management and influencing styles such as

- High level sales meetings or pitches for your organisation
- Manage upwards and dealing with political dynamics.
- Leaders with important presentations coming up
- Leaders in the talent pool looking to develop key presentation skills
- Leaders looking to improve their impact whilst leading team meetings
- Middle managers looking to improve the way they communicate in, and around, their team.
- Anyone who suffers from anxiety at the thought of making a presentation.

How does it work?

